Rapists are strangers in dark alleys.

There is no typical rapist profile or behavior. Most sexual violence acts are done by someone known to the victim in a place that was previously safe to them such as at home, workplace, school or university.
People wearing revealing clothes shouldn’t be surprised if they are assaulted.

No clothes or behavior equals an invite to rape. Nobody leaves their house hoping to be touched without their consent. Sexual assault can happen to any person - regardless of how they are dressed or behave. Rape is never the victim’s fault and her or his appearance and behavior never excuse sexual assault.
Agreeing to a sexual act means agreeing to everything else.

Consenting to one thing does not mean that the person automatically agrees to do other activities. Checking for consent should be an ongoing conversation.
Men cannot be victims.

Sexual violence can happen to anyone, no matter your age, your sexual orientation, or your gender identity. Men of all sexual orientations can be victims of rape and sexual assault. They are often fearful of reporting their experiences for fear of being judged as ‘unmanly’ and stigmatised.
People shouldn’t drink in order to protect themselves from rape.

ALL INDIVIDUALS HAVE THE SAME RIGHTS TO DRINK ALCOHOL AND ASSAULTS WHICH TAKE PLACE WHILE PEOPLE ARE INTOXICATED OR INCAPABLE OF WILLINGLY GIVING INFORMED CONSENT ARE THE FAULT OF THE PERPETRATOR, NEVER THE VICTIM.
Sleeping with someone once means they will want to again.

Consenting to sexual activity on one occasion does not mean that consent can be assumed in the future. Consent should always be checked on each occasion and during any encounter. Everyone is entitled to refuse to give consent, change their mind, or decide to stop the activity at any time.
It wasn't rape or sexual assault if the victim didn't shout or fight.

Sexual violence victims are often frightened for their safety and so will cooperate with the offender to protect themselves. Victims may also become frozen with terror and unable to fight back. Lack of physical resistance does not mean that consent has been willingly given.
‘Rape’ accusations are thrown around for revenge and cannot be taken seriously.

Less than 1% of rape prosecutions are for making false allegations. This misperception enforces stereotypes of victims, underestimates victims’ experiences and might make it difficult for them to seek support for fear of being dismissed.
Sex workers cannot be raped.

The transactions sex workers negotiate with clients are for consensual activities only. Sex workers - whatever their sexual identity is - have the same rights to consent as anyone else and there is no excuse for assault.
If a person has sex with their partner without consent, it is not rape.

Regardless of the marital or social relationship between the offender and the victim, if an individual does not consent to sexual activity, he or she is being sexually assaulted.
You can spot an offender by the way he or she looks.

RAPISTS ARE NOT PHYSICALLY IDENTIFIABLE. THEY MAY APPEAR FRIENDLY, NORMAL, AND NON-THREATENING. MANY ARE YOUNG, MARRIED AND HAVE CHILDREN.
If an offender is really guilty, he or she will go to prison for a long time.

Justice is not always served, due to lack of evidence, no witnesses, not believing the victim or even miscarriage of justice.
