Research Interests

The Rule of the Land: Walking Ireland's Border (Faber & Faber, 2017) is my most recent book. It was widely and positively reviewed and has gained significant media attention. In the Guardian Colm Tóibín called the book, "Great writing about landscape and history". While in the Daily Telegraph Micheal Kerr said, "It is Carr's contention that Ireland is more divided than any of us suspected — not in two but in three: north, south and borderland. The third state is opened up in this marvellous book"

This book and my curatorial roles form the basis of my Impact Case Study for REF 2021; 'Politics, Landscape and Identity on Ireland's Border'. I am currently developing impact projects for the next REF, likely to be in 2028.

I have made three commissioned programmes for BBC Radio 4 and presented the Book Programme for RTE (Ireland). I am a frequent contributor to the press, the BBC and to other newspapers and broadcasters across the anglophone world, for example the New York Times, the Guardian and the Economist. In addition I have presented many papers to academic conferences, primarily on the topics of cartography and writing about place.

I have a background in visual art and this remains part of my research. I make maps that I exhibit widely and have been selected for inclusion in government and university collections. I also curate a touring exhibition called Mapping Alternative Ulster, funded by the Arts Council of Northern Ireland. It is an exhibition of maps created by independent cartographers and has received wide media attention. It first ran in Belfast's Ulster Museum in 2015 and its last run was in Donegal's Regional Cultural Centre in 2022. One visitor called it, "A striking exhibition – provoking new insights." Another remarked that it, "made me proud to live here and made me want to draw a map." I was also the curator of a group exhibition called Frontier Work, a group show of visual art that ran in Donegal's Regional Cultural Centre in 2022.

Hundreds of statements about life on Ireland's border were written during the Border People's Parliament in 2018, when 150 border residents met at Northern Ireland's Parliament Buildings, an event commissioned by 14-18 NOW and the Belfast International Arts Festival. One of my roles was to draft a border manifesto from the written statements. The manifesto has been exhibited in Düsseldorf's Kunstsammlung Nordrhein-Westfalen (2021), Belfast's Golden Thread Gallery and Manchester's Whitworth Gallery (2022). The manifesto, according to one commentator, is a "Poetry of reasonable voices".

I am an external REF reviewer for Falmouth University.
